RE: Chapman Griffin Lanier Sussenbach Architects, Inc.

To Whom It May Concern:

As Director of Capital Improvements for Fulton County Schools, I have had the opportunity to work with Chapman Griffin Lanier Sussenbach Architects (CGLS) and their lead principal Bob Sussenbach. The firm has recently worked for Fulton County Schools providing architectural services for the new 320,000 SF Johns Creek High School, the Fine Arts Addition for Tri-Cities High School and the new Cambridge High School in Milton, GA, as well as additions and renovations to improve the appearance and functionality of our existing Chattahoochee, Roswell and Creekside High Schools. The firm has recently been reappointed to our architect panel based upon their previous performance.

As an integral part of their work in designing the new Johns Creek and Cambridge High Schools, CGLS planned and designed each school's Athletic Field Complex, which included a 3,700+ seat Football Stadium, with all of its associated amenities and support structures, a synthetic turf playing field and an 8 lane running track.

Through our years of working together, CGLS has consistently proven that they are technically competent, mindful of the budgetary needs of the Owner, meet schedules and produce excellent construction documents. In addition, the firm is a pleasure to work with - Bob Sussenbach is always available, works with the Owner to insure the plans meet expectations of stakeholders, efficient in responses and diligent in insuring the construction is correct. I know CGLS also does repeat work in Cobb and for Gwinnett County Schools. I use the word repeat to reflect CGLS is always working for the Owner in anticipation of the upcoming work.

Sincerely,

Michael V. Wilbourne
Director of Capital Improvements
